YOU CAN CHANGE SOMEONE'S LIFE IN JUST ONE HOUR A WEEK

Dear Ms. Cotton,

Volunteering can create small moments that leave a lasting impact.

At GiGi's Playhouse Raleigh, a Down syndrome achievement center, young leaders like you help participants build communication skills, master milestones, and grow more independent every day. And the best part? You don't need any prior experience, just your desire to show up.

Because you're pursuing nursing, volunteering with us offers real, hands-on experience which will strengthen your communication, patience, and leadership skills that healthcare employers look for. Plus, our volunteer opportunities are flexible, designed to fit your college schedule.

Here's what volunteering gives you:

- Practical experiences working with diverse learners and families
- Stronger communication and support skills
- A welcoming community where your energy makes a direct impact

If you're ready to use your compassion in a place where it genuinely changes lives, visit <https://gigisplayhouse.org/raleigh/volunteer/> or scan the QR code. Your time and heart could mean the world to someone who simply needs a shoulder to lean on.

Sincerely,
Jocelyn Scheel
